*" I remember the corned beef of my Childhood
And the bread that we cut with a knife
When the Children helped with the housework,
And the men went to work not the wife.
The cheese never needed a fridge,
And the bread was so crusty and hot,
The Children were seldom unhappy
And the Wife was content with her lot.*

*I remember the milk from the bottle,
With the yummy cream on the top,
Our dinner came hot from the oven,
And not from a freezer; or shop.
The kids were a lot more contented,
They didn't need money for kicks,
Just a game with their friends on the road,
And sometimes the Saturday flicks.*

*I remember the slap on my backside,
And the taste of soap if I swore
Anorexia and diets weren't heard of
And we hadn't much choice what we wore.*

*Do you think that bruised our ego?
Or our initiative was destroyed?
We ate what was put on the table
And I think life was better enjoyed. "*

HOW I LEARNT ABOUT LINKAGE

I often mention the importance of linkage so I thought it might be helpful if I explained how I cottoned onto the idea many years ago.

I thought I understood how the dark factor always travels in a connection with colour. If a Dark Green is split for Blue, the dark factor can be attached either to the green or the blue, but not both. If a Dark Green split for Blue is mated to a Sky Blue the result is either Dark Green and Sky Blue babies or Cobalt and Light Green babies, but usually not a mixture.

I thought I understood sex linkage, where hen birds can't be split. For sex linked varieties cock birds were just like recessive varieties and could carry the SL (sex linked) varieties in hidden form.

There were not many Opaline Cinnamons about, so I decided to experiment to see if I could get the two varieties to combine. My first mating was of an Opaline cock with a Cinnamon hen. I figured that this would mean any young cock birds bred would just look Normal. Sure enough, I bred a Normal cock bird. The next year I mated him to an Opaline hen and to my astonishment they produced three young hens, one Opaline, one Cinnamon and one Normal. I thought every young hen would have to be Opaline or Cinnamon and here was a baby, just plain Normal, carrying no Cinnamon or Opaline. Where had the Opaline and Cinnamon gone to? No naughty Normal cock bird had sneaked into the breeding cage, and I did not think Budgerigar hens stored male gametes for future use.

I asked every expert I could find, and consulted the standard text of the time, The Cult of the Budgerigar, and I was none the wiser. No one could explain how this could happen. Eventually I learnt that the explanation is that when the sperm and the ova are produced there is a remixing of the features being passed down. Sometimes features can simply be dropped off and, even more interestingly, features that were separate can become connected together. In addition, I learnt that this doesn't just happen in sex linkage. Links are formed or broken continuously.

In more recent times I have learnt that some linkages are formed and reformed constantly, while some are very strong and are only broken very rarely. Two very obvious examples are sex linked combinations. Cinnamon combined with Ino makes Lacewing and Cinnamon combined with Opaline makes Opaline Cinnamon.

The link between Cinnamon and Ino occurs rarely. Cinnamons were crossed with Inos for about twenty years before people noticed birds showing the typical Lacewing characteristics. Once the link was established the Lacewings bred as though they were a single variety. On the other hand the link between Cinnamon and Opaline occurs very commonly.

As a result the combination is recreated frequently. The process works in two directions. If the link is easy to make it is easy to break. Conversely, if it is hard to form a combination it is just as hard to break it.

So, how does this help us in trying to breed our budgerigars? The most obvious use is that we can see how Opaline Cinnamon and Lacewing can both be bred as though they are single varieties, so it makes sense to give them separate recognition in our show classes. The linkage between Cinnamon and Ino is stronger than the link between Opaline and Cinnamon, but for practical purposes you can outcross either of these combinations with Normals with confidence that you will be able to breed the combined variety from the splits. Other combinations (such as Opaline and Greywing) are easy to make and just as easy to break because they are not linked.

The second use is that it might help us to understand why it can be so difficult to breed desirable features even when we are breeding from birds showing those features. I think it is very likely that the gene for beautiful clear wings in the Clearwing is very closely linked with tight feathering and small boned structure. Crossing Clearwings with larger, more feathered birds always leads to loss of clarity and brightness. It may be impossible to break this linkage.

Like Clearwings?

The makeup of feathering occurs by the combined effect of a number of genes working together. When we mate birds together each with different desirable feathering we are often disappointed because we don't see the features combined in the babies. This is probably because we are trying to create a combination of linked features and it may be that it will require quite a large number of cross matings before the combination occurs. When it does – when you see the desired features combined on a single bird – you must treasure that bird because it may have the capacity to pass the linked combination on as a single unit.

LAUGH AWHILE

There were 3 good arguments that Jesus was BLACK:

1. He called everyone brother
2. He liked Gospel
3. He didn't get a fair trial

But then there were 3 equally good arguments that Jesus was JEWISH:

1. He went into His Father's business
2. He lived at home until he was 33
3. He was sure his Mother was a virgin and his Mother was sure He was God

But then there were 3 equally good arguments that Jesus was ITALIAN:

1. He talked with His hands
2. He had wine with His meals
3. He used olive oil

But then there were 3 equally good arguments that Jesus was a CALIFORNIAN:

1. He never cut His hair
2. He walked around barefoot all the time
3. He started a new religion

But then there were 3 equally good arguments that Jesus was an AMERICAN INDIAN:

1. He was at peace with nature
2. He ate a lot of fish
3. He talked about the Great Spirit

But then there 3 equally good arguments that Jesus was IRISH:

1. He never got married
2. He was always telling stories
3. He loved green pastures

But the most compelling evidence of all – 3 proofs that Jesus was a WOMAN:

1. He fed a crowd at a moment's notice when there was virtually no food
2. He kept trying to get a message across to a bunch of men who just didn't get it
3. And even when He was dead, He had to get up because there was still work to do

Does education really matter?

The Lone Ranger and Tonto are camping in the desert. After their tent is all set up, both men fall sound asleep.

Some hours later, Tonto wakes the Lone Ranger and says, "Kemo Sabe, look towards sky ... what you see?"

The Lone Ranger replies "I see millions of stars".

"What that tell you?" asks Tonto.

The Lone Ranger ponders for a minute then says "Astronomically speaking, it tells me there are millions of galaxies and potentially billions of planets. Astrologically, it tells me that Saturn is in Leo. Time wise, it appears to be approximately a quarter past three in the morning. Theologically, the Lord is all powerful and we are small and insignificant. Meteorologically, it seems we will have a beautiful day today. What's it tell you, Tonto?"

"You dumb Kemo Sabe. It means someone stole the tent."

LAWYERS NEVER LIE .....?

A lawyer with a wife and 12 children needed to move because his rental agreement was terminated by the owner, who wanted to reoccupy the home. He was having a lot of difficulty finding a new house. When he said that he had 12 children no one would rent a home to him, because they felt that the children would destroy the place. He couldn't say that he had no children because he couldn't lie; we all know lawyers cannot and do not lie. (?)

So he sent his wife for a walk to the cemetery with 11 of their children. He took the remaining one with him to see rental homes with the real estate agent. He loved one of the homes and the price was right...

The agent asked "How many children do you have?"

He answered "Twelve".

The agent asked "Where are the others?"

The lawyer, with his best courtroom sad look answered "They're in the cemetery with their mother".

MORAL: It's not necessary to lie, one only has to choose the right words.
